

'Yarning up: Making a difference through Higher Education'

Speakers: Barry Judd, Matthew Hansen, Rhyannon Fricker, Mandy Nicholson, Hans Bokelund, Laura Wilson & Deon Davis

Date: Tuesday, 14th October 2008

Time: 5.00 pm – 7.00 pm

Venue: Monash University, Clayton Campus, Law Faculty Basement, Building 12

You are invited to attend an introductory twilight seminar – 'Yarning Up: Making A Difference Through Higher Education', hosted by Monash University's Arts and Law Faculties.

Seminar topics include:

Introduction: pathways for Indigenous community members in Arts and Law

Completing a Monash Arts and/or Law degree: what it takes

Career options available to Monash graduates: how to make a difference

The seminar aims to inspire Indigenous People to consider careers as Lawyers, Archaeologists, Criminologists, Native Title Consultants and the like.

Come and have a yarn with current and past Indigenous university students. Let us 'Yarn Up' and see that Aboriginal People can make a difference in Australian society through Higher Education, both as students and as graduates.

RSVP: Tuesday 7th October – Door prizes and BBQ provided
